Says Iraqis Kill Jews As Zionists

A protest against the reported execution of seven Jews by the Iraqi government for "Zionist affiliation" was filed by Dr. Nahum Goldmann, acting chairman of the American section of the Jewish Agency Executive, with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Dr. Goldmann's telegram said that fourteen more were arrested.

The Agency received word of the executions in a cablegram from its Jerusalem office. The message said that the Iraqi government action was announced over the Baghdad radio.

At the same time a representative of the American Jewish Committee, in New York City, said that his organization had been informed, through a Jewish telegraphic agency dispatch from Tel Aviv, that the seven men were sentenced to death. He said that there may be some question as to whether the executions have actually been carried out. With this in mind, Jacob Blaustein, committee president, also sent a wire to Mr. Acheson asking State Department "intervention" to save the lives of the seven.

Open support of Zionism is a capital offense in Iraq, according to a representative of the committee.

Dr. Goldmann's telegram called the trials and executions a "travesty of international law and the laws of humanity" and urged that the government of the U.S. "use its good offices to see that justice prevails in Iraq."

"So far as we know, no other charge except that of Zionist 'affiliation' was lodged either against the slain men or those to go on trial," Dr. Goldmann said. "Under such conditions the executions can only be described as murders of a particularly atrocious [illegible] I respectfully call your [illegible] to the fact that this latest [illegible] government, in contravention with the United Nations, is bending all efforts to achieve permanent peace in the Middle East.

"The inflammatory nature of the news carried by the Baghdad radio must be obvious. For the sake of both humanity and international peace, we urge the United States government to use its good offices to see that justice prevails in Iraq and that political assassinations are not carried on in the guise of solemn legal judgments."

Dr. Goldmann said that various Jewish organizations have called the attention of the State Department recently to other "offenses against international law perpetrated by various Arab League states against peaceful citizens." The persons involved in the trials and executions are said to be Iraqi citizens.

Mr. Blaustein characterized the death sentences as "persecution" and urged Mr. Acheson to intervene to have the sentence commuted.

The American Jewish Committee announced also that its honorary

U.P.A. Spent Vast Sum This Year

Agencies of the United Palestine Appeal expended $165,000,000 in 1948 for immigration, rehabilitation and resettlement in Israel, Magistrate Morris Rothenberg, acting national chairman, announced in New York.

Magistrate Rothenberg emphasized that the Jewish Agency for Palestine, one of the appeal's constituent bodies, was operating at a deficit of $1,000,000 a week because of the newcomers to Israel, who numbered 81,149 in the first quarter of 1949.

The agency, the Palestine Foundation Fund and the Jewish National Fund are carrying out the UPA's immigration and upbuilding program in Israel.

The chairman reported that the funds spent in 1948 made possible the reception and initiation of resettlement for 133,000 Jews who entered Israel. Seventy-five settlements were founded and 100,000 dunams (25,000 acres) were acquired.

Magistrate Rothenberg asserted that "traditionally marking freedom and deliverance, the holiday of Passover, this year more than ever before, celebrates the greatest exodus and liberation in Jewish history." He added that in the first quarter of this year 81,149 Jews left the displaced persons camps of Europe as well as the ghettos of North Africa and the Middle East to enter Israel.

Meanwhile, coincident with the Passover holidays, symbolizing the liberation of the Jewish people from Egyptian bondage, the Zionist Organization of America started a nation-wide registration of American Zionists in a "Book of Remembrance."

Dedicated to the biblical theme, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem" the book will be deposited in the Central Library of the Israeli Government in Jerusalem as a testi[illegible] the announcement said, "to re-creation of the Jewish state and as a tribute to the valiant struggle of the people of Israel for independence." Plans call for presentation of a facsimile copy to the Library of Congress at Washington.

Weizmann Sees Increase In Immigration

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, first President of the State of Israel, arrived at the New York International Airport at Idlewild, Queens, with the somber warning that his embryo nation still faced the danger of military attack. This is Dr. Weizmann's first visit to America since his election.

However, the graying, 74-year-old scientist-statesman, who devoted the major part of his life toward achieving a national, independent state in the Holy Land for the Jewish people, also held out great promise for the ultimate success of developing the new state into a land devoted to the ideals of democracy and progress in the world family of nations, says the New York Times.

He and five other members of his party, including his wife, Vera, and son, Benjamin, left the plane after eleven other passengers debarked. By special arrangement, his party was cleared by the United States Public Health Service aboard the plane.

Dressed in a brown overcoat, tan muffler, gray flannel suit and brown hat, Dr. Weizmann walked slowly with his wife and a New York City detective to a room in the airport terminal where he was officially greeted. Mrs. Weizmann was dressed in a beaver coat, a brown tailored suit and brown felt hat with ostrich feathers.

As he entered the airport terminal building, Dr. Weizmann appeared wan and tired, but waved and grinned broadly to an applauding crowd. Once in the reception room he was embraced by Eliahu Elath, Israeli Ambassador to the United States. Mr. Elath then presented a bouquet of roses to Mrs. Weizmann.

"It was a pleasant trip, but a little too long," the statesman said [illegible]

He then accepted greetings from President Truman and the State Department presented by Ray Atherton, former United States Ambassador to Canada, and the collective welcome extended by Vincent Impellitteri, President of the City Council; Borough President Hugo Rogers of Manhattan, Borough President John Cashmore of Brooklyn, Henry Morgenthau Jr., chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, and other municipal and Jewish communal leaders.

In another room, the Israeli President, who came to America to be guest of honor at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel for the scientific institute bearing his name at Rehovoth, halted before a battery of newsreel microphones. Speaking softly, he said:

"I am very, very happy, and I speak on behalf of my wife and son. We are happy to find our-

Fight To Control Z.O.A. Continues

A controversy over control of the Zionist Organization of America, one of the largest Jewish organizations in the United States, came into the open with distribution of a statement by the Committee for Progressive Zionism within Z.O.A., attacking Dr. Emanuel Neumann and the administration of Z.O.A.

The statement by the Committee for Progressive Zionism was a reprint from "Israel Speaks," an Anglo-Jewish semi-monthly publication. The C. P. Z. said it expressed its views in "Israel Speaks" because the committee was denied expression in "The New Palestine", official organ of Z.O.A.

The controversy will be resolved at the Z.O.A.'s national convention to be held in New York starting May 27 when the rival factions will support candidates in an election for a successor to Dr. Neumann, who is not eligible for another term as head of the Z.O.A.

The dispute in the Z.O.A. is linked to the recent difference in the United Jewish Appeal in which Henry Morgenthau Jr. and Henry Montor won out over forces backing Dr. Neumann and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver. As a result of the U.J.A. dispute, Dr. Neumann and Dr. Silver resigned from the American Section of the Jewish Agency Executive, top world Zionist body.

Most of the C. P. Z. leaders were supporters of the Morgenthau-Montor faction in the U.J.A., while Dr. Silver, a former president of Z.O.A., is considered, with Dr. Neumann, one of the ideological leaders of the present Z.O.A. administration.

Rabbi's Family Is Largest To Reach U.S. Intact

A Rumanian rabbi, his wife and their twelve children, arrived in New York under the auspices of the United Service for New Americans. This was, Agency officials said, the largest family group to have survived the war and arrive intact in the U.S.

Forty-two-year-old Rabbi User Jonas Weinberger, his wife, Friedsrike, thirty-six, and their handsome children were taken to the U.S.N.A. shelter at the Marseilles Hotel, 103rd Street and Broadway. The children are Chaim, sixteen; Nathan, fifteen; Julius, fourteen; Serena, thirteen; Lazar, eleven; Eva, ten; Aurelio, nine; Josef, seven; Miriam, five; Hana, four; Efraim, two, and Sali, seven months.

Ralph Astrofsky, head of the shelter, bustled about planning for the family's immediate disposition. "We'll need about five rooms for them during the several weeks they'll stay, until we find them an apartment." The thought did not faze him. "Oh — we'll need two tables in the dining room. A regular convention. But we'll try to get them settled before the thirteenth child, who's on his way, is born."

All the boys, from Josef up, wore hats and tightly curled sidelocks. They will study for the rabbinate. "I hope to found my own yeshiva, like the one I had in Rumania," explained the Rabbi.

Since his marriage eighteen years ago, the Rabbi had been head of a large yeshiva in Timisoara, with about 150 theological students enrolled. In 1941, at the time of the German-Rumanian non-aggression pact, he was forced to go underground, living in a cellar away from his wife and children, sending instruction to the yeshiva, receiving only occasional visits from his wife. After four years of hiding, he prepared to flee the country after [illegible] decided to exterminate all Jews.

"Just then," he recalled, "Rumania turned to the Allied side and we had to flee from the attacking German." With eight children and a ninth on the way, they fled on

N.Y. Hospital To Cost Millions

Plans to raise $3,500,000 next fall and winter for the construction of a 200-bed general, voluntary, non-sectarian hospital in Queens by the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York were announced in the annual report of Ralph E. Samuel, president.

Mr. Samuel gave his report at the annual meeting of the Federation at 71 West Forty-seventh Street. The board of trustees of the charity had decided upon the project, he said, on the advice of the subcommittee on hospitals, which had been studying health needs in New York and Long Island for four years.

The hospital, tentatively called Long Island General Hospital, probably will be built on vacant land owned by and adjoining Hillside Hospital at 263rd Street and Union Turnpike, Bellerose, in eastern Queens. Hillside Hospital, a small psychiatric treatment center, joined the federation last October.

Mr. Samuel said the subcommittee had found a "serious deficiency" in hospital beds in Queens, Nassau and Suffolk Counties. As of last September, the latest report showed there were 2,[illegible]9 general care beds in Queens, whereas the need as stated by the hospital council was 4,747.

Queens has only 5 per cent of the total voluntary, general care hospital beds in the city, although it has nearly 20 per cent of the total private hospital beds, the committee discovered. Similar shortages were true of Nassau and Suffolk, the president said.

The new hospital will join nine others among the 116 various institutions receiving maintenance from the Federation and benefitting 480,000 persons. For these institutions, the Federation will have raised $14,500,000 by next Sept. 30, Mr. Samuel reported, which is about $2,000,000 short of the quota set last year.

A "substantial" part of these funds came to the Federation from the Greater New York Fund, and the charity's hospitals received considerable aid from the United Hospital Fund, Mr. Samuel added. He said the Federation hospitals had added full-time medical chiefs to their staffs during the year, and had made other improvements.

League Claims Nazi Hand In N.Y. Exhibit

Charges that a notorious official of the former Nazi Embassy in Washington is now serving as public relations advisor to the German Bizonal Administration in connection with activities which include promotion of the exposition of German industry opening in New York this month, were made by the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League. The individual is Dr. Heribert von Strempel, who before the war was First Secretary to Hitler's Embassy in Washington. He was noted for his persistent efforts to make the American press amenable to the Nazi point of view.

Von Strempel was named in a 1941 "White Book" issued by the House Committee Investigating Un-American activities as having abused his diplomatic privileges by disseminating Nazi propaganda and race hatred in the U.S. The record includes correspondence between von Strempel and Manfred Zapp, a Goebbels agent, in which it was plotted to propagandize wealthy Americans vacationing in Florida on behalf of the Third Reich. Von Strempel also procured fraudulently a set of Maryland auto license plates to facilitate the activities of Zapp.

The Anti-Nazi League also pointed to public evidence that von Strempel was closely associated with the propaganda activities of Ullrich von Gienanth, Gestapo chieftain at the Germans' Washington Embassy, and press attache Ernest Hepp, who worked in Washington and Stockholm with Hitler's friend, Ambassador Hans Thomsen.

W.J.C. Asks U.N. To Aid In Ex-Italian Areas

The United Nations was asked by the World Jewish Congress to take steps to guarantee the rights of 28,000 to 30,000 Jewish inhabitants living in the former Italian colonies of Tripolitania and Cyrenaica.

The request was made in a memorandum to Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, president of the General Assembly, charging that Jewish communities in the two African colonies have suffered years of discrimination and persecution under Italian Fascist rule.

While the communication makes no recommendation as to the disposition of the colonies — now under consideration by the Assembly—it asks the United Nations to recognize and provide for the protection of the minority rights of Jewish residents in the territories, according to the New York Times.

The Congress' memorandum asks the Assembly to recognize a bill of rights for the Jewish inhabitants, which will guarantee political freedom, religious liberty, the right to emigrate to Palestine or other countries of their choice, and other human rights protected in the United Nations Charter.

Regardless of the disposition of these two colonies, the memorandum holds, the United Nations should provide that treaties or resolutions covering the former Italian possessions should include guarantees of basic rights for minority groups.

The thousands of Jewish residents in the area, the Congress points out in its memorandum, have lived in Tripolitania and Cyrenaica for centuries. After the

MONTREALER GETS AWARD

Dr. Morton Wilfred Bloomfield, a McGill gold medallist who is now professor of English at Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, was granted a Guggenheim fellowship to conduct research in Europe for a book on the intellectual background and content of the 14th century English poem, "Piers Plowman." Dr. Bloomfield, who is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bloomfield, Chomedy Street, gained a B.A. degree at McGill in 1934 with first class honors in English and the Shakespeare gold medal. He obtained an M.A. the following year and a Mayne travelling scholarship. He has taught at the Universities of Wisconsin and Akron, Ohio. He served during the late war with the U.S. Army intelligence and was awarded the U.S. Bronze Star in 1946.

Fellowships amounting to $396,000 were announced by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation in its twenty-fifth annual series of fellowship awards to scholars and artists. Among the 144 recipients were seventeen women, the largest number to receive the Guggenheim fellowships in a single year. The foundation said that this year's awards brought the total since they were first created to 2,117 and the financing to $4,789,106.

The fellowships come from a fund created by the late Senator Simon Guggenheim and Mrs. Guggenheim as a memorial to their son, John Simon Guggenheim, who died as a young man in 1922. Senator Guggenheim said that the foundation was created to add to "the educational, literary, artistic and scientific power of this country and also to provide for the cause of better international understanding."

Says Counseling Aids Family Life

Psychological counseling for personal, marital and family problems as practiced by family service agencies today has become one of the most effective means of preventing "family breakdown," it was maintained by Ralph K. Guinsburg, president of the board of trustees of Jewish Family Service, of New York.

In a special statement commemorating the family agency's seventy-fifth year of public service, Mr. Guinzburg declared that like similar family agencies it now sees as its primary responsibility the treatment of various psychological troubles affecting normal families.

He described these problems as marital discords, parent-child troubles, all types of personality maladjustments, old-age difficulties and the "psychological by-products of physical and mental health breakdowns."

Pointing out that there are more than 200 family agencies in as many cities in the U. S. today, he stressed the "potential force of family counseling in preventing divorces, helping to form happier, sounder children and better citizens once the skill of family agencies and their readiness to serve become more widely known."

The anniversary statement traced the agency's growth from a small committee of volunteers to the largest Jewish family agency in the world, maintaining twelve consultation centers in Manhatten, Brooklyn and the Bronx. The staff of 100 counselors serves more than 12,000 families annually.

The agency, a nonprofit service offering its help either free or for nominal fees, is supported by the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. It was the first family agency in the country to extend help to all income groups through initiating fee services in 1942.

Dr. Gershom G. Scholem, professor of Jewish Mysticism at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, arrived in the U.S. to lecture at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in New York and Cincinnati. Dr. Scholem, the foremost authority on the subject of Jewish mysticism, gave the first of six lectures on "Israel Baal Shem and the Beginnings of Hasidism," at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, 40 West 68th Street, New York. He will present a series at the Cincinnati campus of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion. Dr. Scholem was in America in 1938, when he gave the Hilda Stich Stroock Lectures at the Jewish Institute of Religion (now part of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion) on "Major Trends in Jewish Mysticism", and the lectures were published under that title in 1941 by Schocken Books. Dr. Scholem has been a member of the faculty of the Hebrew University since 1925. A native of Germany, he was educated at the Universities of Berlin, Jena, Bern, and Munich. Dr. Scholem has a personal library of 7,000 volumes, 2300 of which are on the Kabbala, the most valuable collection on this subject in the world. He possesses 1,200 volumes on Hasidism, the subject of the lectures he will present in the U.S.

Sees Too Much Stress On Overseas Needs

Institutions such as the Hebrew Union College are failing to receive adequate financial support because many American Jewish leaders insist that the task of foreign relief be completed first, Dr. Joseph L. Fink, Rabbi of Temple Beth Zion of Buffalo, said at Cincinnati, Ohio, at Founder's Day exercises at the Hebrew Union College. The exercises were in honor of the late Rabbi Isaac Mayer Wise.

Dr. Fink deplored what he characterized as an all too weak connection "between Jewish religious or cultural conviction and this high-geared philanthropic work of American Jewry."

"The first lesson of Jewish history is that the Jew's physical survival has always depended on his intellectual and spiritual nourishment" he said. "But too many of our leaders feel that devoted service to our unfortunates is the totality of Jewish life. There is a strange inner seduction in the work of helping others while neglecting yourself. The whole amazing program of foreign relief, both in Europe and Israel, is essentially extra-synagogal."

One task for the alumni of Hebrew Union College is to persuade persons of means to turn their benefactions toward the college, he said. "The institution that can train must be maintained." Dr. Fink added. "The immortality of his genius is evidenced primarily in this college."

The Canadian Jewish Review is the only Jewish publication in Canada printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Complicated U.S. System In Germany Blocks DP Program

The complicated and time-consuming system of processing DPs in Europe under the DP Act of 1948, is explained in a step by step outline released by Isaac L. Asofsky, executive director of HIAS (Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society), in New York.

Pointing out that only 2,503 displaced persons of all denominations entered the United States, instead of some 50,000 during the first six months of the DP Act's existence, Mr. Asofsky said that "in the complexities and manifold steps in the processing of DPs is reflected the reason why the program has failed to shift into high gear." He added, "President Truman and the DP Commission have asked for revised legislation which would cut red tape in the processing of DPs and which would unthrottle the program".

The procedure currently employed in the processing of DPs, according to the HIAS release, follows:

1) The affidavit giving assurances of job and housing is executed by an American relative or friend and submitted to the Displaced Persons Commission, Washington, D.C., for approval.
2) The DP Commission in Washington validates the assurances and assigns a Washington file number. A copy of the Assurance-Affidavit with the validation is then forwarded to the DP Commission Coordinator in Frankfurt, Germany.
3) Upon receipt of the validated assurance from Washington, the DP Commission Coordinator in Frankfurt makes an index card noting all members of the family.
4) The various assurance affidavits received from Washington are then separated according to the Voluntary Agencies which are sponsoring or servicing the case. These assurances are then filed numerically according to the DP Commission's Washington file number.
5) Each Voluntary Agency is assigned a specific day each week when the Agency representative in Frankfurt obtains his Agency's folder for the purpose of preparing forms for the use of the DP Commission Analyst. These forms indicate the name of the Displaced Person, address, nature of employment, name of employer, address of employment, location of housing, and relationship of sponsor.
6) The forms are then given European case numbers by the DP Commission Coordinator in Frankfurt, and then separated in areas of jurisdiction. Germany, Austria, and Italy are divided into 12 jurisdictional areas, each having its own DP Commission representative, International Refugee Organization (IRO) representative, U.S. Public Health Service Doctors, and U.S. Consuls. After the forms are separated into jurisdictional areas, the DP Commission Coordinator catalogues them according to the European Case Number and the forms are then forwarded to the Senior Representative of the DP Commission at the resettlement center in the particular jurisdictional area where the DP resides.
7) The Senior DP Commission representative requests the IRO coordinator at the resettlement center to properly document the DP and prepare his dossier. The IRO coordinator at the resettlement center then forwards a request to the IRO sub area representative to document the Displaced Person. The IRO sub-area representative contacts the DP, prepares an IRO Resettlement Form and certifies to the eligibility of the DP within the regulations of paragraphs 2B and 2C of Public Law 774. The documentation also includes:
   7 passport photos
   2 copies of the birth certificate
   2 copies of the marriage certificate
   2 copies of the divorce certificate
   2 copies of death certificate
   2 police character certificates (DP Camp or German Police)
   2 documents proving residence in Germany, Austria and/or Italy for any periods between September 1, 1939, and December 22, 1945.
8) The IRO sub area representative then forwards the dossier to the IRO coordinator of the concerned resettlement center who in turn forwards the dossier to the Senior DP Commission representative in the resettlement center who subsequently assigns it to a DP Commission Selector.
9) The DP Commission Selector examines all the documents for compliance with the requirements of Public Law 774. If the documents are found in order, the DP Commission Selector approves the dossier, returns it to the Senior DP Commission representatives in the resettlement center who in turn sends the dossier to the Counter Intelligence Corps (CIC) of the U.S. Army for clearance. The CIC checks the DP as to his character, security threat to the United States, criminal record, moral turpitude, etc.
10) The CIC returns the dossier with its report to the Senior DP Commission representative at the resettlement center who then turns the entire dossier over to the DP Commission analyst. The analyst prepares a report and passes on the case. If everything is found correct and satisfactory, the analyst returns the dossier to the Senior DP Commission representative at the resettlement center who in turn informs the IRO coordinator that the case has been approved by the DP Commission and simultaneously asks IRO to arrange for the DP to be called into the resettlement center for a physical examination by the U.S. Public Health Doctor.
11) The IRO coordinator then informs the IRO sub area representative to notify the DP to report to the resettlement center for a physical examination. When the DP appears at the resettlement center he is examined by the U.S. Public Health Service doctor and if found physically fit, he is told when to report to the U.S. Consul.
12) If the U.S. Consul finds the DP eligible for a visa under the immigration laws, the Senior DP Commission representative is notified, and he in turn notifies the IRO coordinator that a visa has been issued. The IRO coordinator then notifies the voluntary agency concerned that the DP has been granted a visa.
13) The IRO coordinator notifies the IRO movement officer at the resettlement center that the DP has been issued a visa and his transportation to Bremen should be arranged.
14) Upon arrival in Bremen, the DP is again examined by an Immigration and Naturalization Service inspector to ascertain whether he is admissible to the United States. If found to be admissible, the DP is told to wait in Bremen until he finally embarks for the U.S.

The HIAS offices in Germany and Austria are notified by HIAS New York immediately after an assurance-affidavit is executed. On receipt of this notification, the DPs concerned are contacted by the HIAS Office and advised to assemble the documents which are later required by the IRO and other governmental agencies. Each case is kept current in the various HIAS offices.

PRIZE BACHELOR BUTTONS

three-quarters cup butter
one egg
one-half cup shredded almonds one-half cup candied cherries
one-quarter teaspoon salt
one cup brown sugar
one-half teaspoon vanilla
one teaspoon baking soda
one-half cup shredded coconut
two cups sifted pastry flour

Cream butter, blend in sugar, add unbeaten egg, and vanilla. Beat well, add sifted dry ingredients, lastly add fruit and nuts, dredged with some flour. Drop by spoonfuls on unbuttered baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for ten to twelve minutes, or until lightly browned. Yields approximately four dozen.

Mrs. S. Bergman,
457 St. Clements Avenue, Toronto.

CHERRY PIE

For the dough, mix together: one-half cup of shortening or oil, and one-half cup of sugar. Cream well; add one egg; and mix. Sift together about one and one-half cups of all-purpose flour; and one teaspoon baking powder, and mix that into creamed mixture. Press or flatten down on a glass pie-plate, saving some dough to place on top of pie. For the filling, drain one tin of sweetened red pitted cherries. Heat the drained juice with four tablespoons sugar; then stir in two heaping teaspoons of cornstarch which have been mixed with cold water. Cook until thick. Spread the cherries on the dough. Pour the hot, thick sauce over the cherries. Place strips of dough in criss-cross pattern over that, and bake in a 375-degree oven until crisp and brown. If preferred, bake the pie for a short time without putting the strips of dough on the top. Take it out of oven, and spread a meringue over the cherries and place back in oven until pie is baked, and meringue is brown.

U.S. "PILGRIMS" WILL VISIT HOLY LAND

The traditional Jewish institution of pilgrimages to the Holy Land prior to the major religious festivals will be re-established for the first time in more than eighteen hundred years, the first contigent of Jewish "pilgrims" leaving by plane and ship for a month-long guided tour in Israel under the auspices of the Mizrachi Organization of America. Leon Gellman is president.

The Mizrachi tourists, numbering forty persons, will be welcomed by a delegation representing the World Mizrachi headquarters in Jerusalem and the Israeli Government. They will visit sacred shrines and places of worship. Throughout their 30-day visit in Israel, religious American Jews will embark on guided tours, visiting Mizrachi educational institutions, colonies, collective settlements, children's villages, newspaper plants, and vocational training centers, and ancient synagogues. The tour will carry the Mizrachi "pilgrims" through Tel Aviv, Jerusalem, ancient Galilee, the Jordan Valley, the plains of Emek and Sharon, Safed, the cradle of Jewish mysticism, and into the Negev where religious pioneers have established a number of settlements during recent months.

In connection with the pilgrimage, the World Mizrachi headquarters in Jerusalem has established a department of tours with branch offices in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, and Haifa in order to facilitate arrangements for the expected influx of American tourists to arrive in Israel under the auspices of the American Mizrachi movement. The Mizrachi Organization of America, recently opened a division of tours and immigration at its New York offices, 1133 Broadway, to help tourists and prospective immigrants to Israel plan their trips. The division is headed by Rabbi Aaron Pechenick, Mizrachi overseas director.

The Mizrachi Organization will inaugurate regular tours both by plane and ship to Israel. Americans who will visit the Holy Land under Mizrachi auspices will be enabled to travel directly to Israel or first visit Europe where the Mizrachi office in Paris will provide service.

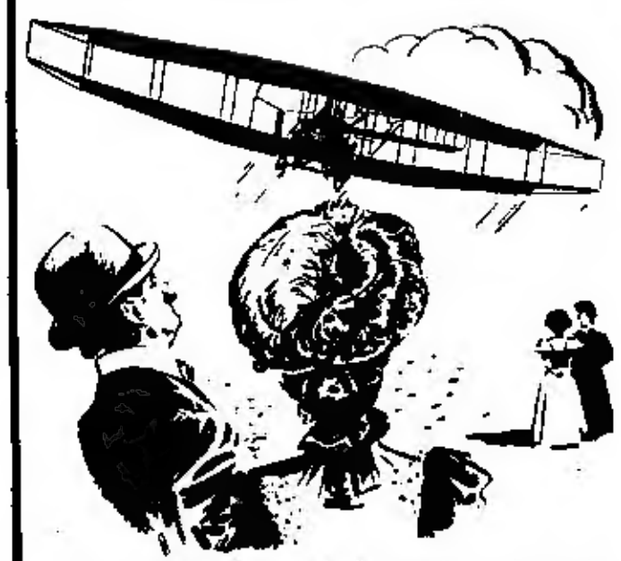
TURNING THE PAGES OF
"CANADA UNLIMITED"



It was 1909. Lurching and bumping over the rough ground at Baddeck, N.S., the Silver Dart rose into the air, piloted by J. A. McCurdy. It was the first aeroplane flight in Canada—and it made history.

History was written in the air again in 1919. Alcock and Brown flew from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Ireland, and brought Canada to the doorstep of the old world. Then came the intrepid bush-pilots, opening new pathways through great wild spaces to new discoveries.

In 1924, Canada's Air Force was born. Through the years it worked quietly, efficiently. Then came the war, and Canada's men of the air emblazoned their names forever in the annals of the world's great.

Now celebrating its Silver Jubilee, the Royal Canadian Air Force is carrying out a work of peace. Lives are being saved by mercy flights . . . the uncharted North is being photographed . . . scientific knowledge of aeronautics is broadened. By opening up many new horizons in this country, the men of the R.C.A.F. are proving there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited!

The Jew And His Neighbour

"Every Jew should be quite clear in his mind as to what are the consequences of the foundation of the State of Israel," said Mr. Maurice Edelman, Labour M.P. for Coventry and distinguished British journalist, speaking under the auspices of the Anglo-Jewish Association in London, England.

"I am quite certain that most people realise fully what its implications are, but I have been astonished when speaking to Jews and reading things which Jews have written, to find that many Jews still feel a certain complexity, a certain confusion in their minds as to what is the significance to them as Jews of the State of Israel. Now it must be absolutely clear both to the Jew and his neighbour, to ourselves and the outside world that, as far as citizenship is concerned, a Jew has a single allegiance, and that is to the country of which he is a citizen; and equally the Jews who are citizens of Israel they too have a single allegiance, and that is the allegiance as citizens of Israel. That, although elementary, is something which we ought to recognise and to consider as completely axiomatic: we can only have a single allegiance, and that is to the country of which we are citizens. Now it may be said that a person can have a large number of loyalties, and I would like to make clear the distinction between emotional loyalties, a community of sentiment or fellow feeling with people in other countries which in some cases is shared with people of many countries and nationalities and citizen allegiance which is judged by what an individual owes to a State of which he is a member.

"As far as the State of Israel is concerned, the fact that I emphasize that we can only have a single citizen allegiance does not in any sense mean that the Jew should not or need not feel with all his emotions, sympathy and indeed affection for the State of Israel and for whatever is done there. After all, the thing which binds Jews together all over the world is the fact that all those who call themselves Jews have in their history a community of experience based on common sufferings, common battles and also, in most cases, common religion. Those are emotions, those are ideological things which link Jews together, and it is right and natural that Jews all over the world should have that emotional link which is based on the community of their history. That does not in any sense mean that they must have the same allegiance; on the contrary, it is most important that the axiom should be the Jew as a citizen has one allegiance only, that to the State of which he is a citizen.

"I would say certainly that as respects those countries where the Jews are persecuted or where they may be persecuted tomorrow, if those Jews want to leave those countries because they feel they cannot have obligations towards a Government which denies them civic rights, it is perfectly fit and proper that those Jews should want to go to Israel, but until they go they cannot have any juridical rights to call themselves citizens of the State of Israel."

From Shepherd To King

A Story For Jewish Children

By Rabbi Ely E. Pilchik

Jesse, David's father, earned his livelihood raising cows, sheep and goats. He had a great many of these, especially sheep and goats, so he needed many shepherds to take them out to pasture. All the boys around the place worked with the flocks. It was a big job and everybody had to do his share.

When David was still a little bit of a boy he asked his father to give him a chance to work just like the other boys. "All right, David," said his dad, "tomorrow you can start with a few lambs and kids, and we shall see how good you are at it." That was exactly what David was hoping for.

Happy David, with a shepherd's crook in one hand and his lamp in the other, started out bright and early the next morning with his little flock. Everything went well, for David loved the animals and watched for them carefully. Not long afterward David was leading big flocks of steers and cows and calves and sheep and lambs and goats and kids to pasture. He was a full-fledged shepherd then and, to be sure, as proud as proud could be.

He began to notice that the little ones had a hard time getting enough food. Some of them were not strong enough to uproot the grass and plants. So David would go and tear out handsful of grass and feed the lambs and kids right out of his hands. After a few weeks they grew big and strong enough to feed themselves. He was very proud of them then.

Then David lined up his flock this way: the lambs and kids and calves would go out first so that they would have a chance to eat the tops of the tender grass; then came the older animals, the cows and the sheep and goats — these could eat the tough leavings. So all the live stock in David's care got plenty to eat and he had the fattest flock in all his father's ranch.

One day a fierce lioness grabbed one of David's lambs. With great courage he pursued the wild beast, grabbed it by its tail, swung it around, opened its jaws releasing the terrified lamb, and gave the lioness such a whack on the back that it let out a great roar and vanished into the forest.

When God saw the great courage and the deep devotion David had shown for his flock, He said: "David is the kindest-hearted shepherd in all the land, and at the same time, he is a strong-hearted protector. That is the kind of person I would like to have lead My people. I am going to take him from his flock of sheep and lambs and kids and elect him shepherd of My flock of men and women and children."

David the shepherd became King of Israel.—Adapted from the Midrash to Psalm 118.

This story is from Liberal Judaism.

With brief and solemn ceremony, the last spike was driven in the C.P.R. at Craigellachie. Then with a lusty shout of "All aboard for the Pacific," the first Trans-Canada train continued on to reach Port Moody at tide water on November 8, 1885. The dream of centuries had become reality.

J.W.B. SEDERS WENT AROUND THE GLOBE

Arrangements for the observance of Passover by Jewish personnel stationed with the U.S. armed forces in Europe, Asia, Alaska, and the West Indies and at some 400 military installations and Veterans Administration Hospitals throughout the United States were carried out by the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB).

Supplies of matzoth, Haggadahs, wine, holiday leaflets and Passover food supplies had been shipped by JWB to every point where Jewish military personnel are stationed, including a number of Army transports which were at sea during Passover. Arrangements for seders at camps, air and naval bases and in VA Hospitals had been made by JWB through the corps of 191 full and part-time chaplains, 20 JWB Armed Services field workers and 29 USO-JWB directors.

The Army had arranged to fly rabbis assigned by JWB to Bermuda and Alaska to conduct Passover services for Jewish personnel there. The Caribbean Command furnished transportation which enabled Rabbi Nathan Witkin, USO-JWB director in the Canal Zone, to make a 4,000 mile trip to survey the Passover needs of Jewish men stationed at various places in the West Indies.

The 282 local JWB Armed Services Committees were engaged in setting up community seders or on-post seders for men unable to obtain leave. Special arrangements were also made by these local committees to organize seders for hospitalized Jewish veterans, including bed-ridden and ambulatory patients. One of the largest hospital seders was at Northport VA Hospital where 1,000 meals were served. In some communities Jewish chaplains made provision for welcoming men who were on manoeuvres during Passover. Reunions of hospitalized men with their families during Passover had been scheduled by JWB at a number of hospitals. At Kingsbridge VA Hospital in the Bronx, Catholic and Protestant veterans cooperated in bringing stretcher and wheel-chair patients to the seder. Broadcasts of recorded Passover services have been organized in other hospitals.

Overseas seders were conducted in Europe, Korea, Japan, Hawaii, Canal Zone, Bermuda, and the Philippines. Seder arrangements were also made for Jewish men in Jamaica, San Juan, Antigua, St. Lucia, British Guiana, and Trinidad. The Jewish community of San Juan, Puerto Rico, had issued a special invitation to all Jewish servicemen and their families throughout Puerto Rico.

The armed forces have cooperated fully in JWB's Passover programming. In addition to facilitating the shipment of supplies for transports at sea, Pacific Fleet Headquarters had radioed all ships at sea advising them where seders were to be held in the Pacific. Christian chaplains in the Army and Air Force at Guam and other Pacific bases cooperated in organizing seders.

The Jewish community of Indonesia has become officially affiliated with the World Jewish Congress, Dr. I. Schwarzbart, WJC Organization Director, announced, bringing the total number of national affiliates to 66. The Vereniging voor Joodse Belangen, central Indonesian Jewish representative body, voted to affiliate itself with the World Congress at a meeting of its General Assembly, in Batavia. The Jewish community numbers approximately 2,000 persons. Sixty percent are European, the remainder are of Eastern origin. The colorful settlements contain a mixture of Syrian, Iraqi, Dutch, Polish, German, and Hungarian Jews. The principle ones are in Batavia, Surabaya, and Bandung, with smaller groups dispersed in other parts of the vast Indonesian archipelago. In view of the unsettled conditions now prevalent in Indonesia, the affiliation will afford the Jews of Indonesia a source of protection in case of an emergency, and brings it into close contact with Jewish communities in all parts of the world.

Few chronic diseases offer such opportunities for the dramatic relief of symptoms and promise of return to normal living as does diabetes. For the average diabetic to live a normal, happy life, it is only necessary for him to have an adequate knowledge of his condition and to recognize that faithful cooperation with his doctor will bring this about.

Ralph M. Nunberg, former editor in chief of the Berlin daily newspaper, 12 Uhr Blatt, and author of "The Fighting Jew," died of a heart attack in his home at 230 Riverside Drive, New York. He was 45 years old.

His wife, Maria Avellis, a soprano with the Metropolitan Opera Company, was notified of the death in Boston, where the company is appearing. She is his second wife, whom he married a year ago in Hollywood, Calif.

Mr. Nunberg was born in Berlin, and began his business career as a member of the administration in the Deutsches Theatre of the late Max Reinhardt there. Later he became a stockholder in the 12 Uhr Blatt and served as its editor until the advent of Hitler. He left Germany when the Nazis came into power.

TRUMAN FRIEND IS GLAD TO GET BACK

Eddie Jacobson, friend and former haberdashery partner of President Truman, returned from a month's visit to Israel. He denied that his visit to Israel was on behalf of President Truman either officially or unofficially.

Mr. Jacobson, who arrived at 10.30 A.M. at New York International Airport at Idlewild, Queens, on an Air France plane from Paris, described Israel as "beautiful and marvellous," but "troubled and having hard pulling because of the war and economic difficulties."

Mr. Jacobson, who was accompanied by his wife, said:

"I went to Israel just to satisfy my own desire and curiosity about the new nation. I am going home to Kansas City and to my haberdashery shop today and I am going to stay there."

Ignorance Is The Cause Of Friction

By Basil L. Q. Henriques, St. George's Settlement, London, England

The following appeared as a letter to the London Jewish Chronicle:

Ignorance of each other is one of the most important of the many causes for friction between Jews and Christians. When they get to know one another, strive together for a common objective, and share the same loyalties, as occurred during both the wars, Jews and Christians live together in amity and mutual respect. This is what is happening in the Council schools to-day. It is only when they leave school and join their own denomination clubs that Jews and Christians drift apart and forget the friendship of their childhood.

Religion must be the basis of club work, for from it is created that club spirit which is very difficult to define, but which is the most precious part of club life. The religion of a mixed club must not be a watered-down Christianity nor a watered-down Judaism. But I believe it is possible to run a Jewish-Christian club, so long as there is a fairly equal number of members and of managers from each denomination. A Jew cannot possibly provide for the spiritual needs of Christians or vice versa.

But if a club is open on five nights a week, and each evening ends with prayers, I can see no reason why on two or three nights a week the Jews and Christians should not separate and conduct their own services in their own way, and why on two or three nights a week they should not meet together and, after a short address on an ethical subject, or on one which will create the esprit de corps of the club, all the members should not either stand in silence, each communing with God in his own way, or else join together in a psalm or prayer which is common to both denominations. After all, it is to the same God that all will be praying; they are all His children.

The difficulty comes with the Sabbath. Clubs have a great opportunity to introduce their members (it is tragic to have to use the word) to that most precious tradition, the Jewish Sabbath. Never in our history has there been such a need for the clubs to do this, for until now it has been done by the parents in the home. But it is absurd to close one's eyes to the alarming deterioration of the sanctity of Friday nights. The clubs, therefore, have to do what the parents used to do. Any mixed club must close on Fridays except for this all-important activity of creating a Sabbath spirit for its Jewish members. Similarly, there is no reason why the club should not be closed to all members on Sundays.

Neither Jews nor Christians should be allowed to play competitive league matches on their respective Sabbaths, but I see no reason why friendly games of teams composed of both Jews and Christians should not be arranged. Again, it is absurd to pretend that an enormous number of Jewish boys do not travel and spend money on Saturday. However wrong it may be from an Orthodox point of view, I do not believe that any club rules will now be able to stop them from doing it. It is, therefore, far better for them to play organised team games than to hang about the streets, or to attend the dance halls, cinemas, and fun fairs.

It would take too long to explain the tremendous difference between playing league games and friendly games, but the former are competitive and official, wherein there is a grave danger of desecrating the Sabbath, while the latter is a private, healthy form of recreation where there is no fear of destroying the spirit of the Sabbath. It is, therefore, essential that no Jew should represent his club on the Sabbath in league games.

One of the main purposes of the A.J.Y. is to organise competitive sport which does not take place on the Sabbath. Although there is a slight risk of spoiling the feeling of unity among the members by maintaining this rule, I do not think it is great, and I believe that it can easily be overcome. After all, there are a large number of competitions which need not be held on Friday night or Saturday afternoon, when the club can be represented by a mixed team.

We do not seek to gain the admiration of the Christian; we seek to be friends one with another. This is impossible if we only meet occasionally. It is doing things together, not doing things in rivalry, that creates the right relationship. Both at my public school and at my university, I fully shared the life of my Christian colleagues, except that they went to church and I to synagogue. It created no greater bar between us than it does between a Roman Catholic and a Methodist, and none of us became weaker in our allegiance to our respective church or synagogue.

Clubs are the public schools or universities for the working boy. If Jews and Christians can live together and feel equal pride and loyalty to the Alma Mater, without losing their religious distinctiveness in the one, they can surely do it in the other.

World Mizrachi Head Dies

Rabbi Meyer Berlin, president of the World Mizrachi Union Organization of Religious Zionists, died in Jerusalem. He would have been 69 soon. Death followed a heart attack. He had been ill for some time.

Rabbi Berlin, who recently changed his name to Bar Ilan, is a former president of Yeshiva University in New York. He was a member of the American Joint Distribution Committee and had lived in Jerusalem for twenty-five years.

Rabbi Berlin, who had been a member of the executive committee of the World Mizrachi Organization since 1911, and the Organization's president since 1931, was born in Volozhin, Russia, on April 25, 1880, the son of a Rabbi. He was president of the first Mizrachi World Conference at Amsterdam in 1918; and the vice-president of all World Zionist congresses held since 1921.

In 1923 Rabbi Berlin was president of the Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, New York; and from 1916 to 1922 he edited the Hebrew weekly, "Haibri," in this city, which he had edited in Berlin from 1909 to 1913. To various periodicals he contributed articles on Talmudic subjects throughout his life.

Rabbi Berlin married in 1903, Bella Rabinovitch, a Russian. Three children were born to them: Mrs. Sol. Lieberman (Dr. Judith Lieberman); Mrs. A. S. Haskin and Tuvja Berlin.

CANADIAN GETS A.J.C. POST

Dr. Morris N. Kertzer, associate rabbi of the Park Avenue Synagogue, of New York, has been appointed director of the division of interfaith activities of the American Jewish Committee. A lecturer and educator, he was born in 1910, in the "bush country" of Northern Ontario, where his father had pioneered. A log cabin in Cochrane on what was then "the last mile of steel" was his first home.

Dr. Kertzer served as a chaplain in World War II and is the author of "With An H On My Dogtag". The only Jewish chaplain to serve on the Anzio beachhead and the first to enter Rome after its liberation, Dr. Kertzer travelled extensively in Europe, Asia, and Africa before and during the war. He was in Palestine during the Arab riots of 1936 and again at the close of the war. He was awarded the U.S. Bronze Star Medal for meritorious achievement during the war.

Dr. Kertzer was graduated from the University of Toronto. He was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary and did graduate work at Columbia, Illinois and Michigan. After several years with the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, he became associate professor at the School of Religion of the University of Iowa. Since 1946 he has been associated with Dr. Milton Steinberg, noted Rabbi of the Park Avenue Synagogue. He received his doctorate in 1947 from the Jewish Theological Seminary.

Founded forty-three years ago, the American Jewish Committee combats bigotry and promotes democratic principles in the United States, protects the civil and religious rights of Jews overseas, and furthers Jewish cultural, religious and communal interests in the U.S.

Canada's first citizen was born in the village of Compton, Que. He was educated at St. Charles College in Sherbrooke, Que., and received his Law Degree at Laval University, Quebec City.

Universally recognized as one of the leading barristers in Canada he is past president of the Canadian Bar Association. Married to Jeanne Renault, of Beauceville, he has five children.

He was asked to enter public life in 1941, as the successor to Honorable Ernest Lapointe; in August 1948, he was unanimously chosen leader of the Liberal Party.

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

One God Of The World

The first affirmation in Judaism is the unity of God. Ethical monotheism is the unique contribution of Israel to religion. Often it is erroneously stated that the Jew discovered God. Peoples, long before the Jew came on the stage of history, believed in gods. Primarily, peoples worshipped the manifestations of nature. They worshipped sun, moon, and stars. The Egyptians believed in the crocodile; people of India, in the sacred cow. What the Jew discovered was that God, the Eternal, is the creator of all the glorious manifestations in nature. God is without beginning and without end, the holy, the compassionate God.

That was a revolutionary doctrine which the Jew gave to the world. This doctrine of God's unity constitutes the cornerstone certainly of Judaism and of all great religions. This doctrine is expressed in six words: "Shema Yisroel Adonoy Elohenu Adonoy Echod: Hear, O, Israel: The Lord our God, The Lord is One". Beginning with the Second Temple the Rabbis invested the Shema with the importance of a confession of faith. Twice daily in prayer the Shema had to be recited. When the Torah is taken out on Sabbaths and holy days, the entire congregation pronounces the Shema. Certainly, at the conclusion of the Day of Atonement the Shema is again pronounced. This prayer is the first one to be taught to Jewish childhood and it is the last utterance of the dying. The Shema has been the battle cry of Israel and this precious prayer welded the Jewish people into one great brotherhood.

In the defence of God's unity the sages of Israel had to war against polytheism, paganism, and idolatry. The great Prophets of Israel had to warn their people time and again against the temptation of worshipping the strange gods of the people surrounding them. One need only to turn the pages of history to appreciate the struggle of the Jew in the defence of God's unity. When the Roman Empire flourished the Jew had to fight against the deification of the Emperor. Jews alone were the only people that dared to reject the erection of statuas paying divine honour to Caligula. Indeed, thus did the Jew, in the words of a great historian, "save the honour of the human race."

The Jew had to defend God's unity also against the novel doctrine which was developed by the Jewish Christians identifying a man born of a woman with God. Originally, the Trinity consisted of Father, Mother, and Son and later this concept was formulated as Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Perhaps this trinitarian doctrine is to be traced to the fire-worshippers who observed three shades of light in a flame of fire and therefore believed that God consisted of three in one.

We who believe in the unity of God have our faith strengthened by the fact that the researches of science support the doctrine of a single creative process at work in the universe. The more scientists penetrate into the mysteries of the universe the more they behold a Divine Mind guiding the destinies of the world.

We rejoice that education and scientific research have proven in our day that the Jew is rather the Christ-Begetter and not the Christ-Killer. We Jews blessed the world with Jesus who has become the inspiration for millions who call themselves Christians. Would that Christians might be Christ-like and follow the teachings of the humble Rabbi of Galilee who taught men to love one another!

One thing is sure: that Jesus, the Jew, knew nothing about trinity, virgin birth, or the doctrine of original sin. He lived as a Jew and worshipped the One God of Israel, the Creator and the Eternal Holy God. Jesus was crucified by the Romans as a rebel against Rome along with a number of young Jews who dared to revolt against Roman oppression. We note that in liberal Christianity there is a growing tendency to give emphasis to Jesus, the man, and little if any identification is made of him with a God concept. We Jews, who believe in the unity of God, believe also in its corollary, the unity of mankind. Even as we have One Father, so we are all members of the one human family.

Jew and Christian in the Passover-Easter Season must unite yearly in the preservation of the Judaeo-Christian doctrine of God's unity and human brotherhood. There are many forces at work trying to negate this doctrine. There is no hope for humanity unless people return to the worship of one God and rediscover their spiritual being. Man has descended to being a manipulating animal and is absorbed in attaining power and physical things. Man must find God again and bring back into life that hope, love, and compassion which result from the worship of a loving God who is the Father of all mankind.

first World War, under Fascist administration, the Jewish inhabitants were prevented by discriminatory laws from earning a livelihood and many were compelled to seek charity, the memorandum says.

Even as recently as 1948, the memorandum contends, Jewish residents have been the victims of pogroms, which resulted in more than a hundred deaths and considerable property damage.

Without mentioning Britain by name, the communication contends:

"The authorities charged with the administration of these territories, undertook no action to prevent the pogroms or to combat them effectively once they had been initiated. The communities have not succeeded as yet in rehabilitating themselves, mainly because adequate security has still not been established and no appreciable indemnification has been forthcoming from the occupying or local authorities."

clean Germans would be permitted to come to New York in connection with the German industry exposition, Prof. James H. Sheldon, administrative chairman, and Hon. Herman Hoffman, chairman, board of directors, of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, in a joint statement said:

"General Clay's assurances on this point are meaningless as long as he takes no steps to bar exhibiting companies whose owners and managers were minions of the Hitler regime. In such cases the imprint 'Made in Germany' really means 'Favored by the Gestapo'. Until these concerns have been reorganized from top to bottom — which has not yet been done — good Americans will not buy their products. To clear exhibitors like Lanz and Rosenthal, in the face of their flagrant Nazi records, is to invite Americans to send dollars to Germany for the purpose of rebuilding the old Nazi machine that once before dominated German economy.

"In short, our complaint about this exposition is based on the still existing Nazi taint of the German firms that will benefit, and concerns individuals like von Strempel who are climbing back to power in Germany. General Clay's 'assurances' are limited to the hired men who are to come here as fronts — and do not touch the real culprits whose presence in the background makes the whole idea of this exposition repugnant to patriotic Americans."

foot, strafed by Nazi planes. Taking pity on them, a Rumanian gave them seats on a train. When it stopped at a suburban station, the rabbi and his family left to seek refuge in a village. A few minutes later the train was wrecked by bombs.

After liberation, Rabbi Weinberger and his family remained in Rumania until the end of 1947 and then went to Prague. A native Czechoslovakian, the rabbi was aided by the Joint Distribution Committee which, like U. S. N. A., is supported by the United Jewish Appeal, and finally received his visa. "We were cared for all together," he recalled, "and all together we are now in this land of refuge to build new physical and spiritual lives and celebrate Passover, the Jewish festival of freedom."

U. S. N. A. sponsored the immigration of twenty-four other families among the Gripsholm's 573 passengers. Also among them was four-year-old Gabriel Fryszdorf, who was born in a Warsaw cellar after his father's death during the ghetto uprising in 1943. After V-E Day his mother received a posthumous decoration from the Polish government for her husband's heroism. Gabriel will make his home with his mother and stepfather, William Orlen, of 890 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn.

WEIZMANN SEES

selves once again on the soil of this country. You have done so much to bring about realization of the ideals for which we have been working for seventy years.

"I want to express my gratitude to the Government, the President and the authorities of the United States who have spoken so nobly for a dream which thirty years ago seemed fantastic.

"The existence of Israel is a hard reality. Israel is a small country and I am not unmindful of the difficulties we will have to meet. We are admitting immigrants without restriction. We have to do it; we have no choice. We must make a superhuman effort to get them out of Europe and to give them a home in our country. This means training and the establishment of industry.

"Today, at this moment, this young government has two cardinal problems, absorption of immigrants, and preparation to ward off attacks. So far, we have warded them off, but we cannot yet say the danger is over.

"It may be our enemies, encouraged by certain factors I would not like to mention, are still contemplating evil. They will not succeed. For them, it is just an adventure; for us, it means life or death."

In a prepared statement that he had cabled from Europe, Dr. Weizmann declared that his nation had reached the threshold of peace after great sacrifice, and that his nation's most pressing problem was the mass immigration of Jews from displaced persons camps in Europe and other parts of the world. He said the immigration program would be stepped up and that his nation could not shoulder the financial burden alone.

As Dr. Weizmann left the airport building he was cheered lustily by 1,000 persons who had gathered at the airport to see him. He was driven in a motorcade led by police motorcycles displaying the American and Israeli flags to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel where he will stay until he returns to Israel on May 1. The hotel also displayed the American and Israeli flags over its Park Avenue entrance.

Dr. Weizmann presided at the traditional Passover Seder service at which he and members of his party were guests in the home of Meyer Weisgal, executive vice-president of the Weizmann Institute of Science, at 924 West End Avenue.

Once Berlin Civic Figure, Is 90 In Exile

Hugo Heimann worries about Germany as much today as he did when he helped found the Weimar Republic. Each day he reads every word he can find in many newspapers and he turns on the radio to hear what they say about the country in which he lived for eighty years.

Celebrating his ninetieth birthday, one of Berlin's most distinguished political and civic figures in pre-Hitler days still prayed for Germany's return to civilized glory.

Braced by the presence of his 81-year-old wife, Cecilie, whom he married sixty-five years ago, Mr. Heimann forgot about his aching leg and rose from his bed in the little room at the New York Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, 121 West 105 Street. He told of his deep affection for the United States that had sheltered his wife and him after they left Germany and England in 1939.

"I can't be thankful enough for America that let us live as free human beings," he said. He told how they had arrived penniless in New York on Christmas Eve, 1939. When they left Berlin they left an eighteen-room house. In his thirty years as a city official there, he was a City Councilman from 1900 to 1918, a member of the Reichstag and the Prussian Diet, representing Berlin.

His personal fortune sustained his family and he never received recompense from his jobs. When, under the pressure of Hitlerism, he was forced to leave, he left also the title of Ehrenbuergerbrief, denoting "Freedom of the city" given to him by Berlin in 1925. Mr. Heimann recalled that for fourteen years in succession he had been re-elected as chairman of the principal committee of the Reichstag.

The city of Berlin had his services from 1900 to 1932, when he retired. He relinquished his post in the Prussian Diet in 1910 after two years there. In 1918 he journeyed to the city where they set up the Republic. And there Hugo Heimann was named head of the committee, the one that served for every purpose in the Reichstag.

When the Nazis tore his name from the city's Freedom list, because Hitler would not sign as long as the "Jew" Heimann's name was there, a little piece of Mr. Heimann's heart went with it.

However, the joy that lighted his eyes in March, 1948, sprang again when he held up the huge folio that had the reinstatement edict. Hugo Heimann was told then by the American Military Government that he had been restored to the honor of Ehrenbuergerbrief by the Berlin City Council. Even the Communists said it was all right, he notes with a smile.

A family party was held for him at the home of his son, Dr. Eduard Heimann, 548 Riverside Drive. Dr. Heimann is one of the original members of the university-in-exile set up at the New School for Social Research. Another son, Leonard, lives in Springfield, Mass. His daughter died at Auschwitz.

In his halting manner Mr. Heimann sought for the right word to tell of the good he wished his old homeland. He and his wife have been citizens of the United States since 1945.

From German papers he turns to English words in newsprint to read of Germany's plight.

"I'm interested with all my heart in what is going on," the aged statesman said. "It is my country, my culture, my friends," he adds. Before he entered public life in 1899, he won renown as a publisher. The free public library he gave Berlin still remains, as too his donor's name that the Nazis wiped away and that Berlin has restored.

EINSTEIN: "UNIVERSE BUILDER", SYMBOL OF THE HUMAN SPIRIT

By William Laurence, In The New York Times

Albert Einstein, who demonstrated in his relativity theory that absolute time has no objective reality, became seventy in terms of ordinary years as measured by the non-relativistic calendar. The man revered above all others by scientists the world over as the outstanding intellect of his generation, who was acclaimed as one of the immortals of history at the age of 26, observed his reaching the Biblical three-score and ten quietly at his modest home in Princeton, N.J.

He is still slowly recuperating from the major surgical operation he underwent at the end of last year. He is working as usual on his major problem for more than a quarter century — the construction of a mathematical theory linking the forces operating within the infinite stellar universe with those operating within the equally infinite universe of the nuclei of atoms.

For the first category his relativity theory offers the best available explanation so far and for the second the quantum theory, of which he is a major proponent, now provides a partial and still unsatisfactory understanding.

Having united time and space, matter and energy, the laws of motion and of gravitation, into a comprehensive single cosmic entity, he has been seeking all these years, and will continue to seek until the end of his days, for a still larger, all-embracing concept that would also include electromagnetism amid the vast forces within the nuclei of atoms that hold the universe together in one fundamental cosmic law, which, like a white radiance, may manifest itself as a many-colored rainbow through a multi-faceted prism.

It has always been Dr. Einstein's wish to ignore his birthday anniversary, regarding it as of no particular importance in the temporal life of an individual. This year, however, advantage was taken of the occasion to note not only his contributions as one of the eight "universe builders" in history, as George Bernard Shaw described him, but also as a world citizen and one of the outstanding spiritual leaders of his generation, who has become a symbol of the human spirit and its highest aspirations.

Under the auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), three of the world's leading scientists, all personal friends of Dr. Einstein, prepared reviews of Einstein as a scientist, as a man, and as a world citizen. These reviews were made available to radio stations throughout the world for broadcasts.

The three contributors are: Prof. Neils Bohr of Denmark, Nobel Prize winner in physics, who ranks next to Einstein in greatness as a living physicist; Prof. Arthur H. Compton, Chancellor of Washington University, St. Louis, also a Nobel laureate in physics, and Prof. Jacques Hadamard of France, one of the greatest living mathematicians, and a founder member of the League for the Defence of the Rights of Man.

The second event in honour of Einstein's seventieth birthday anniversary was a symposium on the theory of relativity in contemporary science held at Princeton, N.J., under the auspices of Princeton University and the Institute for Advanced Study, of which Dr. Einstein is the most distinguished member. More than 300 specially invited scientists attended the all-day session, part of which Dr. Einstein attended.

In his statement for UNESCO, Chancellor Compton said:

"Einstein is great, not because of any effect he may have had on our habits of life, but because he has shown us our world in truer perspective and has helped us to understand a little more clearly how we are related to the universe around us.

"He has made it possible for man to see himself in his truer proportions. His concept of light quanta has helped us understand the atoms that make up the world of which we are a part. In his special theory of relativity he has taught us that we must think in terms of objects that we see, not in terms of some imagined framework of space.

"By his general theory of relativity he has unified our laws of motion and our law of gravitation, and has opened the way for us to see with new clarity our universe, finite now in extent, but vaster than has been dreamed before his thoughts stimulated the imagination of the scientific world.

"Einstein continues his studies. He still hopes to bring all the forces that physics knows, gravitational, electrical and nuclear, into one unified formula. As yet that goal is not achieved, but in his progress toward that goal he has greatly expanded our horizons."

Professor Bohr said:

"Through Albert Einstein's work the horizon of mankind has been immeasurably widened, at the same time as our world picture has attained a unity and harmony never dreamt of before. The background for such achievement was created by preceding generations of the world-wide community of scientists, and its full consequences will only be revealed to coming generations.

"The gifts of Einstein to humanity are in no way confined to the sphere of science. Indeed, his recognition of hitherto unheeded assumptions in even our most elementary and accustomed concepts means to all people a new encouragement in tracing and combating the deep-rooted prejudices and complacencies inherent in every national culture.

"With his human and noble personality, characterized equally by wisdom and humor, Einstein himself has through all his life, and not least in these latter years, worked for the promotion of international understanding. On his seventieth birthday evidence of the veneration and gratitude our whole generation owes to him will reach Einstein from many sides, and we all want to express the wish that the hopes for which he has lived and worked may be fulfilled to the benefit of all mankind."

Professor Hadamard, who is Einstein's senior by 15 years, said:

"The theory of relativity was known only to scientists at the time the war broke out in 1914. Two ideas of the world then stood face to face. That which inspired the Germans was expressed in the manifesto of the ninety-three intellectuals, which has remained infamous from that day.

"But the human conscience replied. A counter manifesto was signed by Einstein and only two others. By this gesture, the man whom scientists already knew to be great, showed himself no less so in his humanity.

"There were scientists, even distinguished scientists, who believed that his theory contradicted common sense. And non-scientists spoke a more violent language. First, Einstein was a Jew. Then he had chosen Swiss nationality as a youth, for he had already disliked the moral climate of Germany. That was enough to have his theories called 'un-German' and to make him unpopular in Germany.

"At that very time (1919), his theories were being attacked in France because their author was called a German. And elsewhere, so-called philosophical and political attacks joined forces; relativity was called 'Bolshevism in physics'.

"When Einstein came to Paris in 1922, at the invitation of the College de France, we were afraid that there might be demonstrations against him by nationalist fanatics —the very men who later in 1940 collaborated with the invaders of our country. So we even kept his address in Paris a secret.

"In addition to scientific discussions I also had the pleasure of more intimate conversations and other contacts, in which I learned to know Einstein in yet another light: the almost disingenuous youthfulness of his look and that great simplicity which marked even his deepest and most fruitful ideas.

"To this pleasure was added that of a common love of music. It was a delight to have that great scientist reveal himself in my home as a first-class violinist with a rare musical gift and to see the pleasure which he took in taking part in our musical reunions."
